Write a Poem What is a poem

Many poems have words or phrases that sound good together when they are read aloud. Most poems for children rhyme or they have rhythm (just like music) or repetition. But a poem doesn't have to rhyme! People have been writing poetry for over 4,000 years, but they were probably making up verses to recite in front of audiences long before that.

Daedalus and Icarus a poem by Aztlanquill All Poetry

Personally, the story of Daedalus and Icarus is my favorite. Your poem was exceptional and really detailed with evidence from the myth. The only thing I would suggest adding is, Icarus was overwhelmed with joy and spirit (which is why he flew so high). However, the poem does more than fine without that minor detail. Thanks for participating.

Tuck Everlasting faces that question head on, mostly by putting Winnie and the Tucks in some sticky situations. At the core of all the moral dilemmas is this: should you protect yourself or the people you love? We have to say it: this novel is just as much about morality as it is about mortality.

Mother Goose Makeover A Sign of the Times by Poetry

I remember the day I received a copy of The Real Mother Goose after the birth of my son in 1970. I thought, Oh, I remember reading Mother Goose when I was a boy. What a thoughtful gift! Then I looked more carefully at the cover and saw that Mother Goose was pictured as an old, spindly woman in a pointy black hat and cape, quite like a witch.
